To whom it may concern,

I am applying for a position in your organization. My leadership, management, and creative solutions reflect my committed service of clients, customers, employers, and friends. Because of this and my interest in your organization, it would be my pleasure to contribute to your success.

Before managing the support department at CleanTelligent, I was responsible for their largest corporate clients, $\approx 10\%$ of the company's revenue. I found alternative ways to save clients costs by using the tools we provided, saving one client tens of thousands (USD) annually. I bring value to any responsibility I am given.

As the manager of the support department, I was trusted with a team of great people. We consulted with business administrators and brainstormed enterprise software implementation. I also trained employees, consulted on UX and UI improvements, and was trusted to represent the company at events. Strong relationships are important to me. I gave my employer 4 months notice and continued to do contract work for them as a private consultant and contractor.

As both a private Excel contractor and freelance orchestral composer, I made custom Excel reports, designed in-app reporting tools, a website and online store, have done data entry work, some scripting and automation, and have composed via contract for the SyFy Channel, BYUtv, Comic-Con, IHC, training videos and other corporate media.

The scope of my contract work ranges from single-day to multi-month projects that were organized into checkpoints to reach various goals for multiple clients.

Thank you for reviewing my application and information. Please reach out to schedule an interview.

Best regards,

Sean Jackson
